DTP launches Green guide

Green; the word is getting used more and more in today's society. But are we actually doing anything Green as businesses or as individuals to help the environment?

In the 21st century climate change is no longer a questionable threat on the horizon but a definite reality existing here and now. As a result, government officials, the business world and society as a whole must recognise the need to take immediate action.

The guide is designed to make you aware of some of the things you can do to help reduce the effect we as people have on the environment.

Proof of the benefits of Managed Services....

HP & BT have recently demonstrated the efficiencies and market strength gained in consolidating your technologies through managed services at this testing time in the market.

BT and HP announced plans to develop a strategic go-to-market alliance that will address mutual growth opportunities in the global information and communications technology (ICT) marketplace. As the communications and IT sectors continue to converge, the companies see this as a major opportunity to utilize their combined capabilities in delivering enhanced service offerings.

As a first step, the companies have signed managed services agreements with a combined value of $1.5 billion over the next seven years. Under these agreements, HP will manage BT's midrange and desktop information technology (IT) infrastructure in the UK, and BT will manage HP's voice and data network and product support call centres within the EMEA (Europe, Middle East and Africa) region.
